

H. C. Little states that he moved from 629 N. 12th Street to 1820 North 20th St on 16th May 1882, and exhibits a receipted bill for rent of latter house from date named.

G. H. Brusstar's bill to him is dated July 24th 1882, and says "Bread account to June 14th $10.12"

Not having lived at 629 N. 12th between May 16th & June 14th 1882, he cannot understand how he could have used any bread there.

Then he claims that his wife is in the habit of paying her bread bill weekly - sometimes at the end of two weeks, but never longer - in support of this he exhibits three receipted bills from John Knuffeld Baker at 1854 N. 20th St, one dated

	June 3 rd 1882	" For one weeks bread $1.15cts "
2 nd	June 14 th "	" For two weeks bread $1.95cts "
3 rd	July 1 "	" For Bread $2.10cts "

He states that his wife asserts that she paid Brusstar's young man every cent she owed for bread, and declines to pay upon the present presentation, being determined to undergo legal process in resisting -

Mr. Little declines to allow the bills to go out of his hands, as he claims that Mr. Brouster has been endeavoring to get possession of them.

Mr. L. adds that his wife invariably paid the young man at the door, never paying at the store.

[Abstract:] Report on claim of Mr. G.H. Brusstar's against H.C. Little per unpaid bills.

H.C. Little states that he moved from 629 N. 12 Street to 1820 North 20 St. on 16 May 1882, and exhibits a receipted bill for rent of latter home from date named.

G.H. Brusstar's bill to him is dated July 24, 1882, and says "Bread account to June 17, $10.12".

Not having lived at 629 N. 12 between May 16 & June 17 1882, he cannot understand how he could have used any bread there. Then he claims that his wife is in the habit of paying her bread bill weekly – sometimes at the end of two weeks, but never longer – in support of this he exhibits three receipted bills from John Kauffeld Baker at 1854 N. 20 St., one dated.

June 3d 1882 "For one weeks bread $1.15 cts."

2d June 17 " "For one weeks bread $1.95 cts".

3d July 1 " "For Bread $2.10 cts".

He states that his wife asserts that she paid Brusstar's livery man every cent she owed for bread, and declines to pay upon the present presentation, being determined to undergo legal process in resisting.

Mr. Little declines to allow the bills to go out of his hands as he claims that Mr. Brusstar has been endeavoring to get possession of them.

Mr. L. add that his wife invariable paid the livery man at the door – never paying at the store.
